DANIELSON

Alfred L. Reed, chairman, Andrew E. Meach and Henry A. McEwen make up a merchants' committee of the chamber of commerce that is to promulgate plans and arrangements of interest and benefit to the business firms of Danielson. It is not unlikely that, in the near future, some merchandising event of very special interest to the business community in this vicinity will be arranged for, with the support of the chamber of commerce.

The grievance committee of the chamber of commerce has reported through its chairman, Burdette C. Hopkins, that progress is being made in the matter of devising some way and means of abating the dust nuisance in the business section. One plan suggested is to flush the main street. Another is to oil the side streets, at the expense of abating property owners.

While the property owners along side streets leading into the business section may not relish the information, it has been stated that the selectmen have full authority to either sprinkle the streets with water or have them oiled and charge the expense to these abutting property owners, notwithstanding the fact that the owners who benefit pay nothing. It is done in numbers of towns and cities and is declared to be entirely legal.

Mrs. Isabelle Nellie T. Brown, nee Dwight, died Saturday morning at her home on School street, Mrs. Nellie was born in Putnam, a daughter of Ebenezer and Lela Parkhurst. She was the widow of a Civil war veteran and herself a member of the McGreggor corps. Woman's Relief Corps, with which she had long been identified. Mrs. Nellie was a member of the Congregational church. She leaves a son, Herbert, who is a resident of Providence, and her mother, who is 84 years of age.

A window in a store in the business section contains a display that is attracting much attention at the week-end and is indicative of the demand that has sprung up under prohibition for drinks that are supposed to be under the ban at the present time.

The display that proved of much general interest included home, mail, beer bottles, camping molasses, bottle caps, printed sets of directions for making "non-alcoholic drinks" which can be purchased without the trouble of making anywhere, by the way, and last, but not least, instruments to test out the alcoholic content of any brew that a person might develop from the ingredients on display. It is suggested by one on-looker that the test set is more available so that any person, who more by accident than skill produced a beverage containing in excess of one-half of one per cent of alcohol would know at once when to throw the stuff away.

The anti-prohibitionists are getting many a good laugh out of a peek into that window. They are more or less familiar with the fact that the home brewing industry has grown by leaps and bounds in Danielson and that many a man is laying claim to the ability to produce a brew that "you can't tell from the old stuff," either in taste or effect. Some of the home brewers who give attention to cents claim that they are turning out brew at a cost of one cent a quart of a bottle and that they are not worrying at all over the return of the alleged "good old days."

It is claimed that the brewers could have the net income from the sale of beer making ingredients and accessories in Kiltingly at the present time. It would be making more money than the average saloon-keeper did under license and that is saying a mouthful. The beer makers are becoming so numerous as to be startling.

A publication devoting its attention exclusively to information pertaining to what is being done in the field of breeding thoroughbred Holstein-Friesian cattle has the following to say relative to the bull recently purchased at Syracuse by W. S. Brown of the Shepard Hill farm at Central Village:

The highest 7-day record bull in the second cooperative national sale at Syracuse was Hollywood Glen Alex Segis that was purchased by W. S. Brown of Central Village. This bull is 20 months old and is a son of Judge Segis, the noted bull at the head of the Hollywood herd. Judge Segis, himself the famous prize winner in the show ring, has thirty-six tested daughters, including Yandernum Segis De Kol, that has twice made better than 25 pounds, making over 27 pounds in her best test, and also having completed a year record of over 1800 pounds of butter and 22,000 pounds of milk. There are some one hundred daughters of Judge Segis in the Hollywood herd.

The dam of the bull purchased by Mr. Brown is Glen Alex Queen De Kol, famous as the breed's only 42-pound two-year-old, and dam of the world champion first calf two-year-old, Glen Alex Queen De Kol 2d, who made over 43 pounds as a four-year-old. Her dam, Pettie Queen De Kol, made 42.26 pounds, and is the only 42-pound cow that has produced two 40 pound daughters or two 30-pound two-year-old daughters.

new sire average over 34.03 pounds. The bull is a choice individual himself, handsome, well built, and a factor for improvement in the community into which he goes.

Mr. Brown's idea in purchasing such an animal is to co-operate with the Windham County Farmers' Association in building up the herds of this part of the state and making it a noted breeding section for high class thoroughbred cattle. The most recent purchase of a sire milk production. Mr. Brown says that there are many other advantages.

Commencement week in Putnam and surrounding towns was ushered in Sunday when graduation exercises of the parochial schools were held and baccalaureate services conducted at Woodstock academy and at the Second Congregational church in Putnam. Further evidence of the commencement is seen in the window displays of several Putnam merchants, in which the P. H. S. class colors, purple and gold, figure prominently. One display makes effective use of the class motto, All Are Needed by Each One.

The baccalaureate service of Putnam high school was held Sunday evening at the Congregational church and was attended by the entire student body of the school. Sidney Hayward acted as marshal. Rev. W. T. Beale of Dedham, Mass., occupied the pulpit of the Second Congregational church Sunday morning. Peter Ennis of Putnam, who has twice charged before the Putnam city court with violation of the liquor laws, was before Judge Thomas of the United States court in Hartford Friday, where he was fined $50 and costs. When Ennis was in Hartford Friday morning he had no intention of going to court, but a visit to the Capitol City was to collect a $500 cash bond he had put up following his arrest some time ago. He had not case since his arrest, and had been dropped. Consequently he wanted his money back. On reaching Hartford he found that the case had not been dropped. He told the officials he did not want to go to South Norwalk for a hearing, for he was planning to plead guilty anyway. Judge Thomas happened to be in the city Friday and he was brought to court. He was with District Attorney Day. There were witnesses to a special hearing to accommodate Ennis. It lasted 10 minutes, which was long enough to impose the $50 fine. Ennis was arrested for operating a saloon.
